CHURCH'S ATTITUDE TOWARD FOREIGNERS

WELCOME FOR STRANGERS IS URGED BY THE REV. MEYER OF MILWAUKEE AT
BAPTIST MEETING.

ANNUAL SERMON GIVEN

Importance of High Power Personality in Christian Work Emphasized by the Rev. Phelps of Evansville.

Delegates to the annual convention of the Baptists of the Jansville district arrived here last evening. The annual sermon was delivered by the Reverend Phelps of Evansville and the Reverend P. W. C. Meyer, pastor of the German church, Milwaukee, gave a strong address on the subject, "The Stranger Within Our Gates," which he had previously presented at the meeting of the state convention and at the Northern Baptist convention at Detroit.

Dr. Meyer urged a broader attitude on the part of all churches and those of the Baptist denomination, especially to the foreigners which are flocking to America by the thousands.
"One million immigrants a year mean one million opportunities, far from being a menace or a peril, they are endowed with energy which strives to improve their condition and they should be welcomed and made to feel at home by the Christian people in the land of their adoption."

Dr. Meyer pointed to the fact that America was being colonized by the strangers from all parts of Europe. He cited some striking figures and made some vivid comparisons regarding the great throngs of foreign-born residents in large cities, each with its Italian, Greek, Polish, Slavonic,
Bohemian, and twenty other quarters,
each with the population of a large city of their native land. These people are willing workers and America's progress in industry is based largely on the energy of these foreigners.

But the attitude of the church was not always encouraging toward these new arrivals. There is a coldness and aloofness noticeable which drives the newcomers from the church and unwittingly a welcome in the saloon and other less desirable of our American institutions, which Ameri-
canize them in a less desirable manner.

"Why discriminate against the stranger?" asked Dr. Meyer. "Let the church welcome him with open arms;
speak to him in his own language;
offer him encouragement and opportunity; let Christians realize that in each stranger there is the possibility of a great and beautiful personality;
let the church adopt a human attitude and work in personal touch with the new peoples who are striving for better and nobler things."

Dr. Meyer has had considerable experience with foreign-born residents of Milwaukee and has a wealth of interesting experiences with which to illustrate his address. He advocated that the church not only send its teachers and teachers to work with foreigners, speaking in their own language, but he also urged that the church members adopt and practice a liberal attitude, and what they can by personal contact.

The Reverend Phelps spoke with feeling on the topic, "High Power Personality," declaring that Christianity is the power of God which inspired men to great deeds and heroic effort. He characterized religion as a mighty dynamic force which impelled the early apostles and teachers and which has stirred men in all ages to the greatest accomplishments.
It is a power which will endure
after the Anglo-Saxon race has lost its ascendancy.

There are many persons who are led by social power and influence, said Rev. Meyer, and these are likewise those who see as their highest aim the acquisition of financial power. Money and social standing both have their place, but they should be modified by the greater spiritual power which should be the guiding and directing force in every life.

MANY CHANGES MADE AT MYERS THEATRE

New Heating System Has Been Installed and Marquee Canopy Erected Over Entrance.

While in the off season for theatrical performance, Manager Peter L. Meyers, of the Myers theatre, believes in taking time by the forelock
and preparing for the season to come.
Aside from the general overhauling and summer cleaning up of the theatre proper, Mr. Meyers has installed a new heating system that bids fair
to rival that of any plant in the city.
A ninety horse power boiler has been placed in connection in a boiler house, which is entirely separate from the theatre proper. The vacuum system will be used and it is capable of
heating not only the theatre proper,
but also the Myers hotel and the store
buildings and theatre back. The floor of the theatre will be heated by
the under current system as in the past.

Located as it is in a separate building with diving walls, the danger
from fire, the noise of the steam pipes and other inconveniences which sometimes occurred during a performance
at the theatre, are entirely eliminated. The boiler is dropped into a pit and the boiler is entirely separate from the theatre proper. The vacuum system will be used and it is capable of
heating not only the theatre proper,
but also the Myers hotel and the store
buildings and theatre back. The floor of the theatre will be heated by
the under current system as in the
past.

One of the most noticeable improvements to the theatre is the erection of the handsome marquee canopy over the front entrance of the theatre. It is to be painted a bright gray and will be lighted by two large pillar lights at the street corners and tiny electric bulbs inside. The top is a wire glass and the whole affair is supported, aside from the street columns, by huge chains that are bolted into the building itself.
It is a marked improvement and will be duly appreciated by theatregoers who have suffered inconveniences during rains or snows at the entrance. Extending as it does to the curb, it will permit persons to step from their carriages in their evening wraps, without being subjected to any inconveniences.
Mr. Meyers has also erected a rear-

HANDY BREAD BOARD

Guide for Knife Insures Even Slices
of Equal Size.

To the person who has never cut a slice of bread the operation seems quite simple, yet it is by no means easy to cut bread evenly and get all the slices of equal thickness. This fact is testified by a recent patented device to aid bread-slicing, and one of the latest of these is that devised by a Massachusetts man and shown here. The board has an arched cutting guide pivoted in the center and hinged to the side of the guide is

KNIFE MUST CUT STRAIGHT.
An arm that engages one end of the board and holds it tight. When not in use this framework can be laid flat.
The bread is pushed under the arch and the knife pressed down between the parallel wires that constitute this guide.
It comes out in the form of any thing but cut straight, so the result is a perfectly even slice of bread.

SIPORT Snap-Shots

He Shocked 'Em.
An American playing golf in England appeared on the links of a fashionable club in his shirt sleeves. There were present at the time quite a gathering of England's ultra-ultra to witness the playing of the Holyoke open gold tournament and the American—a contestant—was seen in that horrible condition of dishevelment in the gallery. The result was that a large part of the audience was so staggered by the shock that they dropped their teacups and were unable to enjoy the rest of the afternoon.

What Next?
Everytime you pick up a paper there's another athletic record broken. Down in N. Y. a few days ago the high jump and the javelin toss records were both shattered. Which leads into speculations as to what they'll be doing in these lines a century hence.

Nice for the Fans.
The Athletic fans at Philadelphia have doped out a neat way to get rid of the angors of the visiting club and they're working it. The bench of the visitors at Sube park is under a tin-roofed shelter and

BOXING COMMISSION BILL IS ENGROSSED

Senate Advances Hedding Measure With But One Vote to Spare—Glenn Bill Is Engrossed.

Madison, Wis., June 25.—With only one vote to spare the senate sent to the crossroom yesterday afternoon the Hedding boxing bill providing for an athletic commission to regulate and supervise boxing contests in the state. The final vote was preceded by a sharp debate in which Senator Teasdale characterized the bill as "an outrageous disgrace to Wisconsin." The Teasdale amendment to restrict the bill to the city of Milwaukee was defeated by a vote of 5 to 1. The bill will come up for final passage on Thursday.

Speeches in favor of the bill were made by Senators Kileen, Richards and Weissleder. Richards said that a similar law had worked well in other states. Senator Zophy said that the Teasdale amendment was "trivialous." Kileen said there was no more harm in a boxing contest than in a football game.

Senator Scott wanted to know why a bill was not passed regulating football and baseball. To this Kileen said that the vicious practices that had grown up with boxing were not to be found in the other games and that the Hedding bill wipes these practices away. Senator Teasdale read the effect of the assembly committee in which the chief said that the bill was "a license for brutality and a school for pugilists." After the bill had been advanced Senator Weissleder moved a suspension of the rules, but his motion failed.

Without a word of debate the senate sent to engrossment the Glenn bill for a continuance of the work of the state board of public affairs. The bill carries an appropriation of $40,000.

O'NEILL'S WORK IS CLASSY, SAYS CRITIC

Steve O'Neill, the young backstop of the Cleveland Naps, has just been handed a bouquet by Louis A. Dougher, the Washington critic, who was pretty hard in his criticism of the Naplander last year.

"Steve, you're the goods," says Dougher. "Last year you were handicapping your pitchers and beating your team out of ball games. This year you're delivering in fine style. You're some class behind the bat."

Flower sellers were busy with many of the public squares and presided over by ladies of the nobility. The proceeds of the sales will be donated to numerous charitable and benevolent institutions in which Queen Alexandra is interested.

Chinese Cooking Methods.
The Chinese use very primitive cooking apparatus. The little open air eating houses found everywhere along the streets of the native city and along the wharves have the simplest kind of a furnace supporting a kettle. Chinese cooking is either stewing or boiling, and this kettle answers all possible purposes. In the Chinese houses a very thin cast iron kettle is placed over the fire and everything which the family eats is cooked there.

SPRAYING MACHINE

Powder Pumped Through Nozzles as Cart Moves Over Field.

Two Missouri men have patented a useful farm machine in the spraying apparatus shown in the illustration. It is merely the water-spraying idea put to other uses. A light cart has a tank mounted in the front and connected with a cross pipe with a series of nozzles depending from it in the back. The powder that the tank contains is forced through the nozzle under subnormal pressure to spray it in all directions. The machine is designed primarily for the purpose of spraying insects over growing plants and is a big improvement on the hand method of doing this work, being not only much more thorough, but much more speedy, as it sprays seven or eight rows at once. Such a machine might also be used to sow certain kinds of seed, like grass seed, that did not have to be dropped in rows.

MILWAUKEE STREET BRIDGE MATTER IS GIVEN A HEARING

INVESTIGATION REGARDS OBSTRUCTIONS TO ROCK RIVER BY BRIDGE BUILDINGS HELD HERE TODAY.

INTENDED TO REBUILD

Sutherland and Carpenter State That They Contemplated Fire-proof Structures to Replace Those Destroyed by Fire.

Matters relative to the legal rights of property-owners who have constructed buildings along the Milwaukee street bridge, and various facts concerning the structure, were the subject of a hearing held at the city hall today. The hearing was held in response to a petition filed several weeks ago by C. S. and C. W. Jackman, setting forth that the buildings now located on the bridge and the buildings on the west side of the river, which are in violation of the water power law, chapter 69, laws of 1911.

Appearances made at the hearing this morning were Attorney Ralph Jackman of the firm of Richmond, Jackman and Swanson, of Madison, for C. S. and C. W. Jackman; City Attorney W. H. Dougherty, in behalf of the city of Janesville; George C. Sutherland and Chas. E. Pierce, in behalf of Mr. Sutherland; M. G. Jeffris in his own behalf, and E. F. Carpenter in his own behalf.

In making his statement of the case Attorney Jackman explained that the object of the petitioners was to show that the buildings, as located at present, and as situated previous to the fire of April 1st, constituted an obstruction to Rock river, a navigable stream, to present all the necessary facts and evidence in the case, which the railroad commission shall submit to the governor for a final ruling.

George C. Sutherland was the first witness questioned by Mr. Jackman. He was asked concerning the property which he now owns on the southern side of the bridge to the west and also concerning the property known as the Myers building and the structure owned by him which was destroyed by the fire in April. Mr. Sutherland stated that the buildings were erected on piles, a few of which were encased in concrete. Asked if the debris from the burned building was dumped into the river, Mr. Sutherland stated that most of it fell into the water and floated down the stream, and that no effort had been made to take the debris from the river aside from that which drifted to shore.

Mr. Sutherland was asked particularly regarding his plans for rebuilding the structure which was destroyed and he said that his intentions were to rebuild on cement piers, all fire-proof construction; that he had made no definite plans regarding rebuilding and that he has made no verbal agreements in regard to leasing the stores on the bridge, although he had talked the matter over with Mr. City Engineer C. V. Kerch, who was the next witness interrogated by Mr. Jackman. He explained in regard to the proposed new bridge over Milwaukee street, which will be constructed a few feet shorter than the old structure, being approximately in line with the cement wall of the Jeffris building north of the bridge. Mr. Kerch stated that in his opinion the bridge as constructed would not be an obstacle in the stream and that the river at this point was wider than at a point north of the Jeffris property.

City Attorney Dougherty, who cross-examined Mr. Kerch, stated that while the city was appearing in the investigation its interest was presently confined to its legislative grant of power to construct a new bridge. He contended that whatever might be the rights of private parties to build over the river, the power of the city to construct its bridge was not affected in any way. The right of the city is based upon legislative power contained in its charter and in the general law of the state. A copy of the city charter and of the revised ordinances were introduced in evidence.

Kerch was also questioned rather carefully by the attorneys present regarding the boundaries of Rock river between Fourth avenue and South Third street as laid out by him following the last meeting of the common council and finally accepted in 1906. The map of these boundaries show the present wall of the Merchants and Savings bank to be well to the west side as will be the westerly abutment of the proposed new bridge. A blueprint of the river boundaries will be submitted in evidence.

M. G. Jeffris was called to the stand to testify in regard to the location and construction of the Merchants and Savings bank building and the Jeffris block located on the northern side of the Milwaukee street bridge over Rock river. He stated that he knew of no specific act of the legislature which gave him the right to build the building over the river, but had relied on the general statute for his authority. Mr. Sutherland had also been asked the same question.

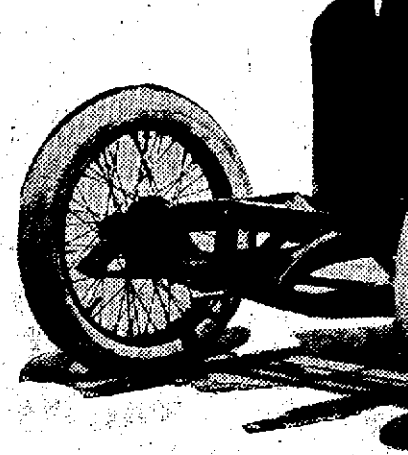

imical to such construction work, he said.

Mr. Jackman was questioned concerning the danger to his building during the fire of April 1st. He stated that the back water from the debris flooded his basement, extinguishing the fire in his boilers.

Testimony of witnesses for the petitioners was completed at the morning session of the hearing and this afternoon was consumed with the examination of others interested in the case. Mr. Jeffris was the first person examined and was questioned by Attorney Chas. E. Pierce. He was asked to enumerate the bridges and dams which obstruct Rock river between the state line at Beloit and the city of Watertown, showing that there are numerous wagon and railroad bridges the majority of which are built on wooden piles. There are also a number of building built over the river abutting on different bridges in addition to those in the city of Janesville.

Mr. Jeffris was also questioned concerning the navigability of the river and declared that except at an early day when logs and lumber were floated down the river and with the possible exception of one or two boats which operated without success, he knew of no commercial navigation of the stream. Such a plan was impracticable, he said, for the reason that there was not sufficient water to float boats of any considerable size; there were numerous shoals and bars which had always been in the river even before the latest of the obstructions, so-called, were built.

Several photographs showing the river at summer or about normal flow were introduced as evidence. Mr. Jeffris was also asked to explain his relations to the common council regarding the establishment of the river lines which he did. He told of his agreement to dredge the river and move part of the bank in the rear of the Rock River block which he said he carried out also building the ce-

EVENTS INTERESTING

Freak Cars in Hands of Expert Drivers Attract Much Attention As They Whirl Round the Track.

Unusual interest was displayed in this afternoon's races at the Park Association track by an enthusiastic crowd of spectators who watched the program run off in one, two, three and four mile heats. Threatening skies kept some of the more timid indoors, but there was a good attendance and the rail gates, outside the wire enclosure of the grounds, were as enthusiastic as though they occupied grand stands.

In order to insure sufficient police protection, Chief of Police Ransom and his five night men on duty, and also the following extra officers for the day: George Palmer, Al. Blum, James Gillespie, William Lamb, M. Rogers, George Champion, and E. Evans. D. L. ment wall on the river line. Attorney Jackman questioned Mr. Jeffris rather carefully in regard to the navigability of the stream, asking if canoes and launches were not in operation the entire length of the river.

He asked Mr. Jeffris if he knew of a United States government report on the navigability of Rock river and of a survey made by government engineers. Mr. Jeffris said he understood that a committee of citizens had reported the proposition, but declared that the government would never undertake to improve the stream, because it would be decidedly impracticable. If they did make such a decision it could have nothing to do with the matter at issue in the present investigation. "I can build a railroad the entire length of the river and operate it, carrying all the freight that there would be freight of cheaper than the cost of making the river navigable," he said.

Several other witnesses, including Mr. Sutherland, were then called before concluding the hearing this afternoon. The facts and testimony will be placed before the governor.

The Argyle Case

A Novelization by J. W. McConaughy of the Successful New Play by Harriet Ford, Harvey J. O'Higgins and Detective William J. Burns. In Which Robert Hilliard Is Appearing!!

Copyright, 1912, by Journal-American-Examiner.

Not was, their curiosity lessened when, a moment later, the young lady entered the room. For Kayton, a moment before the calm, collected man of action, seemed as embarrassed as a schoolboy in the girl's presence.

"Good morning," he exclaimed, with rather more animation than was his wont, as she advanced with outstretched hand. "Ah! How are you?"

"Good morning," the girl returned, and shook hands with him politely. Her manner was visibly constrained and he felt disproportionately hurt, when you consider that he was used to have people with constrained manners come into his office. He angrily assured himself that he was perfectly at ease and to prove it inquired with some nervousness:

"Did you have any trouble getting down here?"

The girl took a seat, unbidden, and Kayton swore at himself for forgetting the most natural politeness. But there was something in the girl's manner that was unmistakably forbidding.

"No," she replied coldly, looking down at a glove which she had stripped off on entering. "There were some re-

had to look up. "Then he said in tones of rather more sincerity than the occasion demanded:

"Miss Mazurek, if anything comes up again or if I do anything that you don't understand please don't lose faith in me. There may be several things about this case that I'll never be able to explain to you. It's been bad enough for you to have been dragged in at all, and I want to save you all I can."

"Oh," exclaimed the girl softly,

"Then it was Bruce!" she declared, gratefully. "You are so good to me! I don't know what I'd do without you!"

Kayton caught his breath with a little gasp.

"Don't try to do without me," he begged swiftly. "I'm only too glad!"

He pulled himself up as the girl drew away ever so slightly. When he went on his voice was pleasant and all but impersonal—that of a safe friend.

"You know," he explained, with a smile, "it's the most pleasant part of our work that we are usually able to help some one in trouble this way. We're different from the police detectives. They're paid by society to punish the criminals. We are retained by the victims of the criminal for protection. They are punishing the strong—we are protecting the weak."

"Oh, I didn't realize that!" exclaimed Miss Mazurek, with feelings. "You love your work, don't you?"

"Well, I'm like a doctor or a surgeon," he replied, still smiling. "I go from case to case or from operation to operation, helping people and fighting the disease of crime, and, like all doctors, when the patients are well and they've paid me they forget me."

CHAPTER X.
"I'm Nellie Marsh."

As the door closed noiselessly behind the woman and Kayton was left alone with her, he took her in from shoes to hat in one swift scrutiny. What he saw quickened him with a thrill that was not unusual with him—the sense of a foe-man worthy of his steel. This was no ignorant, money hunting creature.

In age she might have been anywhere between thirty-eight and forty-five years. She was dressed well, but not expensively, and in excellent taste.

Her eyes were large and dark, and Kayton saw in them something that made him suppress a gasp of surprise.

In manner and appearance she was the well bred woman beyond all doubt, and she still held much of a beauty that once must have been unusual.

Kayton pretended to be busy at his desk after this one swift glance, and he kept up the pretense until after she had seated herself facing him and Joe had departed.

"You have been referred to me," he said slowly, going on with his writing as if her errand were of no special importance. "By Tolworthy & Mead?"

"Yes," she replied quietly, studying his face as it bent over the desk. "I answered their advertisement."

Kayton went on with his writing. "You have some information concerning the person advertised for?"

"Yes."

"Then you know the name those initials stand for?"

The woman did not reply at once, and he raised his head and looked directly at her for the first time.

"You understand we took that means of avoiding publicity," he said coolly. "You're not a newspaper woman?"

"No," was the low reply. "I'm Nellie Marsh."

Not a ripple of the tiniest muscle betrayed Kayton's triumphant eagerness.

"Oh," he said with indifferent surprise, and bent over his writing again. "I suppose you have some proof of your identity besides your knowledge of the name?"

"My name is now Martin," replied the visitor, taking a card out of her bag and laying it on the desk. He glanced at it with mild interest.

"This is your present address?" he inquired.

"Yes. I rent furnished rooms," she said.

"Furnished rooms?"

"Yes."

Kayton laid down his pen and looked up. "Well, Mrs. Martin, Mr. Argyle has left a considerable sum of money to Nellie Marsh for reasons that you doubtless know and nobody else appears to, so we have taken this rather unusual means of getting in touch with you."

"That can be arranged," declared Kayton. "All we need is a proof of identity. Have you received any money from him before?"

"Yes—for a good many years."

"Did you sign receipts?"

"No."

"Did you ever write to Mr. Argyle?"

The woman hesitated for an instant before she replied.

"Not recently."

"I ask because it may save a great deal of legal red tape if we could establish the identity by signature," he explained. "Otherwise I suppose you will have to obtain a copy of your birth certificate, make affidavits and procure witnesses to satisfy the executors and the probate court."

"Wouldn't that involve a good deal of expense?" she inquired uneasily.

"I suppose it would—yes," admitted Kayton. "Do you think your signature could be found among his papers?"

Mrs. Martin thought in silence for a moment and then exclaimed eagerly:

"Why, yes, my endorsement of checks—if he kept them."

"Well, then, if you'll leave your signature with me," said Kayton, rummaging around on the top of his desk, "I'll turn it over to the lawyers."

"Thank you," she replied gratefully and took off her glove. Kayton pushed a pad toward her, dipped a pen in an inkwell and offered it to her. She took the pen and dropped it with a little exclamation of dismay. Her fingers were covered with ink.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," exclaimed Kayton in distress. "Don't get it on your glove. Let me."

He picked up a blotter and carefully dried her fingers, murmuring apologetically. "Always forget about that inkwell. Here, try this pen."

Mrs. Martin wrote her signature, and he thanked her. As she was putting on her glove he asked abruptly:

"Mrs. Martin, have you been following the newspaper reports of Mr. Argyle's death and our investigation?"

"Oh, closely!" she replied, with some nervousness.

"Then you have seen that suspicion has been directed against his adopted daughter?"

"Yes," she replied and bit her lip for a moment. "It seemed to me very cruel."

"Yes, and it seems to me very unjustified," said Kayton grimly. He paused for a moment and then said slowly:

"I'm in a very peculiar position, Mrs. Martin, and it has occurred to me that you could help me."

Mrs. Martin was unmistakably surprised.

"I don't understand," she said.

"Recovered From Severe Lung Trouble"

While we all know that plenty of fresh air and good food are necessary to persons suffering from lung trouble, it is not generally known that there is a medicine for throat and lung troubles, and so many reports have been received showing that it brought about good results in a number of cases which were declared hopeless.

That all sufferers who are not benefiting from the above, at least investigate what it has done for others. It makes the means of restoring you to health. Investigate this cure.

Madison Lake, Minn.
Gentlemen: In December, 1908, and March, 1909, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs, which confined me several weeks each time to my bed. These were very weak and I coughed at nights and could not sleep. My appetite also failed me. My doctor advised me to go West. So, in September, 1909, I planned to go, but I had four more hemorrhages, which put me in bed for three weeks.

In November I started for Denver, Colo. After my arrival I met Michael Brody, who, upon learning of my condition, urged me to take Eckman's Alternative. In a few days I began to feel better.

I kept on taking the medicine and improved fast. In March, 1910, I returned home. I am entirely well, have a good appetite and sleep well. When I left Denver my weight was 130 pounds. Now I weigh 165, my normal weight. I thank God and your Alternative for my health. If I can help any other person suffering from Tuberculosis, I will gladly do so.

(Swordsmen) PAUL FASNAUGHT: Eckman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Write to Eckman's Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists and Smith Drug Co., McCas & Son, Peoples Drug Co., in Janesville.
